I know that. They will work their way to a loss of any credibility outside their own mean spirited network. You are doing a splendid job of hastening that outcome. Have a good evening and a day just for you tomorrow.

I share your disgust but enjoy when we have logical explanations which, over time, discredit them. This is happening, but very slowly.

I was not chiding you Bobbie, I know it is important for you to check those blogs in order to be prepared for the next accusation or claim regardless of it's merit. My disgust is in the aims of these people. So much energy invested in foul work, not useful work.
Do you have

Knowing what people/media/ and "those out to get us" are saying about KCE each day is an important part of my job and unfortunately our mainstream media check this site for new angles on a daily basis. I'm particularly interested in stories related to the vote totals and the AVU party preference thing. I just want to be ready for it.

My real task at hand: completing the Incident Management Course for Mike Strouse. Ugh.

Hopefully I'll get out of here soon.

Do we know anything about these? It is likely that the envelopes were returned with the words "deceased on the envelopes" but perhaps we should look in to it?

Mail Ballot Horror Show (XIV): Dead People Voting?

King County Elections posts the voter id's of returned (not necessarily accepted) absentee ballots <<http://www.metrokc.gov/elections/abstats/>> . The statewide database indicates that several of these voters had been cancelled as deceased.

It's possible the sender might have written deceased on the return envelope. But some of these registrations were cancelled months ago and the ballots shouldn't necessarily have been issued. It's possible the registrations were cancelled in error and subsequently reinstated? (some reappear as active in later database releases). But incorrectly cancelling eligible voters isn't such a good move either.

Absentee voters cancelled as of Feb. 28:
