

My name is Steve London, and I am running for Seventh Congressional District Committee Position on the State Executive Board.

The party needs a leader with experience and training to represent Seattle area Republicans.

I served as chairman of the 43rd Legislative District three times under three County Chairs. I am the go-to guy when people need help.

I know the mechanics of running campaigns. I worked as a poll judge on Capitol Hill and attended PDC and campaign training.

As the District Chair I started the City Wide Summer BBQ Series at Gasworks Park and helped staff the Fourth of July Picnic. I staffed street fair booths, dialed numbers and waved signs.

My wife Maureen and I started a small business in 1983. We manage it together in Seattle. Despite 25 years of living and working together we remain happily married.

During the '04 Election cycle we ran GOTV phone banks from our office. I directed poll watchers on Election Day.

I grew up in rural King County and moved to Seattle. I can work with urban and rural groups.

We need to watch the big picture.

We argue over grammar in our platform while Congress nationalizes our economy one industry at a time.

Our platform is hammered together from many planks. Not everyone agrees with every plank. We need to ask ourselves: "What is a conservative?"

If conservative means agreement with every plank then we have become an exclusive club instead of a viable political party.

My name is Steve London, and I am running for Seventh Congressional District Committee Position on the State Executive Board.

We need someone who can attract new voters and work with the new PCOs who got involved this year.

We had a tremendous turnout at our precinct caucuses this year but the party does not know what to do with the PCOs whom we recruited. These smart (mostly young) people are cooling their heels waiting to learn if they can vote in the reorganization meeting.

Some of these newcomers did not get 10% of the Republican vote in their precinct as required by state law. However, there is a good faith argument that this law changed with the top two primary. They wait while we sort things out. Think how discouraged these people will be if they come out to vote at the reorganization meeting only to be relegated to the peanut gallery. We might lose them.

Some have said these newcomers are disruptive. Let them shake things up. We will not win elections while sitting still. They will bring new ideas and we will teach them how the system works.

Some have said that they are plants from the opposition. I certainly doubt that. I've talked to many of them and they believe in limited government.

Some have said that they won't work. Maybe we don't see them work because they spend so much time on the Internet -- working. The last election proved that we need to work smarter, not harder.

Vote for me. I have the experience and inclusive attitude to integrate these new PCOs and their ideas smoothly into the party's organization. They are our future. I will make sure they have a voice.